Since April 2016 it has been the law to ensure all dogs are microchipped by the time they are 8 weeks old and registered on a DEFRA compliant database such as Microchip Central. Failure to do this can result in fines of up to £500 per dog. Dogs must be microchipped and registered to the breeder before they are sold. It is the keeper's legal responsibility to ensure their dog's microchip is registered and their details kept up to date.
